Dollie.
She sports a witching gown,
With a ruffle up and down,
On the skirt;
She is gentle, she is shy,
But there's mischief in her eye,
She's a flirt!

She displays a tiny glove
And a dainty little love
Of a shoe;
And she wears her hat a-tilt,
Over bangs that never wilt
In the dew.

'Tis rumored chocolate creams
Are the fables of her dreams—
But enough!
I know beyond a doubt
That she carries them about
In her muff.

With her dimples and her curls
She exasperates the girls
Past belief;
They hint that she's a cat,
And delightful things like that,
In their grief.

It is shocking, I declare!
But what does Dollie care
When the beaux
Come flocking to her feet
Like the bees around a sweet
Little rose!

T. A. M. Club Meets.

The Roanoke Times makes pleasant mention of the meeting last week of the T. A. M. Club of Christiansburg, Va., in the home of Miss Annie Gardner.
This club reads the plays appearing in the Shakespearean contest of The Times-Dispatch Woman's Page. At last week's meeting, says the Times, questions on "Othello" was answered, and one scene of the fourth act of the play was read and discussed. Miss Gardner presented the president of the club with a booklet, having the cover inscribed with the initials, T. A. M., and containing pictures of Ann Hathaway's cottage, Shakespeare's home, and Guild Hall, where many of the Shakespearean plays were given. Booklets were also given to club members, the cover design and illustrations of which were the work of Miss Gardner's talented niece, Miss Hickok.

Balcony Party.

The balcony party given last night in the home of Mrs. Calvin Stewart, No. 1031 West Grace Street, for the benefit of the building fund of the Church of the Covenant, was a charming success.
The piazzas and lawn were prettily illuminated with lanterns and set with small, daintily covered tables, at which little people and young people were seated to partake of delicious ice cream.
Home-made candies of all kinds were sold at other tables in fancy little baskets of different shapes, dear to the hearts of children. Pretty young girls, in light summer toilets, flitted here and there, deftly serving refreshments.
Mrs. Stewart was assisted by Miss Rutherford and other ladies belonging to the Church of the Covenant. Music added to the pleasure of the evening, and every-

LORRAINE

By JAMES LINDSAY GORDON.

The biographical sketch of James Lindsay Gordon has recently appeared in this series, with other selections from his writings. "Bonny Lorraine" is supposed to have been a celebrated beauty once, of Richmond.

Bonny Lorraine, have you forgot
The time we walked o'er the morning lawn?
I still keep the blue forget-me-not
That you took from your hair and gave to me.
Would you like to walk those ways again
With me at your side in the morning time?
Do you ever think of your youth's sweet prime,
And your young boy-lover, Bonny Lorraine?

Ah! well I remember the time we stood
By the glancing river when day was done,
And the whispering trees in the dim old wood
Turned crimson and gold in the setting sun:
When your heart and your lips and your arms were fair
To cling to me there as your life's one love—
While the stars came out in the skies above—
Do you remember it, Bonny Lorraine?

Surely your heart could not forget
The night when I bade you a last farewell:
Your long, dark lashes with tears were wet,
And your anguish more than your lips could tell;
How you kissed me there as I stood in the rain,
And held me fast while you bade me go—
With your desolate, golden head bowed low;
I know you remember, Bonny Lorraine.

Across the street where the music swells
You glide through the throng in the shadowy dance.
In your ears the sound of your marriage bells—
In your heart the dream of the old romance;
I see you glimmer across the pane—
The jewels ablaze in your shining hair—
And the form of another beside you there,
But I do not envy him now, Lorraine.

Let him bow down low at your royal feet—
Let him sing love's song if it brings him joy;
I sang it once, and I found it sweet
In the days when you charmed me—a foolish boy;
But I never shall waken the old refrain,
Its beautiful music is almost hushed:
My heart was bruised but it was not crushed,
And it loves you no longer, Bonny Lorraine.

Dance on while the music throbs and beats;
Drink memory to death in your wedding wine;
He knows not your life whose quick glance meets
The false, sweet light in your eyes divine.
I can look on you now with no more pain—
On your fair proud face, in your splendid eyes—
Then looking up to you starlit skies,
Thank God that I lost you, Bonny Lorraine.

FARMVILLE, Va., July 5.—The marriage of Miss Genevieve Bacon Venable, daughter of Mrs. Emily Miller Venable, of Farmville, to Dr. Waller Morton Holladay, of Hampden-Sydney, was solemnized to-night at half-past nine o'clock in the Presbyterian Church.

The artistic arrangement of palms, ferns and roses about the altar made a decorative background for the group of fair young women and gallant men who attended the bridal couple. The bridesmaids wore becoming gowns of white organdy and carried bouquets of mixed sweet peas. The party entered the church to the familiar yet beautiful wedding march from Lohengrin, and left it by that from Mendelssohn, artfully played by Mrs. James L. White.

First came Miss Frankie Irving McKinney, of Farmville, followed by Miss Mary Douglas Womack, of New York city, and Messrs. V. D. Venable, Richard Edmunds, W. B. Arnesen and Robert K. Brock, of Farmville; Miss Martin Venable Edmunds, of Farmville, Miss Nellie Grattan Morton, of Morton Hall, Md.; Messrs. W. J. UNKNOWN MAN WAS COMING HERE

Aged Pedestrian Killed at Free-stone, Near Alexandria, Was Seeking Relatives.

CLEAR DESCRIPTION OF HIM

Sister and Brother Here, Whose Names Cannot Be Learned, May Identify Him.

Mr. J. W. Turner, the telegraph operator at Free-stone, Va., who sent the telegram to Chief of Police Warner last Friday, saying that an old man had been killed there, has answered with a letter the inquiry sent by Clerk Pollock for more about the dead man.

Free-stone has been found to be a small station in Alexandria county, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad. According to the letter, the man was killed last Friday evening by a southbound freight train. He was aged about 65 or 70 years; and weighed between 150 and 170 pounds. He was clean-shaven, but had about two weeks' growth of beard. The man wore a black derby, a white negligee shirt with small black stripes, a long black cutaway coat, dark pants with a little black check, and buttoned saffian shoes, about 8 or 9 in size. He was nearly blind in one eye, and could not hear well.

Coming to Live Here.

He said he was from Baltimore on his way to Richmond to live with his brother and sister, but from the way he talked it seemed he had walked all the way from Baltimore. He said he had been living with his brother, who took to drinking, and finally told him to get out. The body was buried at Free-stone, near the railroad.

From Mr. Turner's letter it appears that the man was conversed with after the accident, but his name and those of his brother and sister in Richmond were not learned.

The description, however, is sufficient for any relatives the dead man may have to identify him.

MILITARY BOARD.

Body Meets and Disposes of Much Routine Business.

A meeting of the Military Board was held yesterday evening, and a number of matters of a routine nature were disposed of.

The board also passed a ruling that officers ordered on special duties, such as court-martial service, should be allowed $4 per day for each day's service, and their actual expenses for transportation to and from points of duty.

The object of this ruling was to allow an equitable compensation to all, or special service, and to reserve the military fund, as far as possible, for the use of organizations.
